SPECIAL REPORT (DECEMBER 2018) *

(* Note: Evidence supporting this story was released long after the Vegas shootings...and has been totally ignored by the Presstitutes. Take a guess as to why?)

What Does the Vegas Shooting Have in Common with Saudi Princes?

Spoiler Alert…it Ain't Just About the Oil

For all you conspiracy junkies out there, this story's for you.

When you start with an FBI cover up, combined with a terrorist attack, mass murder, suicide, money laundering, gun running, extortion, toss in a few Bitcoins (compliments of desperate Venezuelan President Maduro) and mix it up with a destabilization of the price of oil, what do you get?

It's a Saudi Prince's wet dream…worth Trillions.

And this is only the tip of the iceberg.

From Wikipedia:

On the night of October 1, 2017, a gunman opened fire on a crowd of concertgoers at the Route 91 Harvest music festival on the Las Vegas Strip in Nevada, leaving 58 people dead and 546 injured.

Okay, stop right there!

If you followed the Vegas shooting, you most likely heard or read similar reports to the one from Wikipedia.

However, it quickly morphed into something more bizarre.

As if on cue, the majority of the Media Presstitutes ramped up the story and summarized it:

Lone Crazy gunman, Stephen Paddock, was an anti-Trump liberal who liked Rachel Maddow and MoveOn.org. They also said the FBI had linked him to the Islamic State.

He somehow managed to escape every security camera in Vegas while he carried over 23 weapons and thousands of rounds of ammo up to the 32nd floor of the Mandalay Bay hotel…blah! Blah! Blah!

That's the story the major media outlets were told to say from their Wall Street overlords.

It later was revealed that the gruesome details were entirely false…and widely spread by Google and Facebook.

Ahhh! What would we do without social media?

Coverage Stopped Dead in its Tracks

Did you ever wonder why, all of a sudden, the biggest story of the year dropped off the face of the earth?

Here we are two months later, and we still can't get answers to the who, what, where, when, and why questions surrounding this bizarre shooting.

The FBI has shut down everything to do with the biggest mass murder in recent times.

This doesn't pass the smell test.

In fact, it not only stinks, it Royally Stinks. (As in Saudi Royalty)

Let's start with a little-known fact about the Mandalay Bay Hotel.

The upper floors (including the infamous 32nd floor) are owned by Saudi Prince Alaweed bin Talal. (AbT)

AbT is the nephew of Saudi King Salman bin Abdulaziz Al Saud (SbAAS). His father, Prince Muqrin bin Abdulaziz (MbA), was crown prince for about three months in 2015 until he was pushed aside by his brother SbAAS, the king.

AbT was told he, or possibly his brother Prince Mansour bin Muqrin bin Abdulazzi Al Saud(MbMbAAS) would be named the next crown prince.

However, the king had a change of heart and named his own son, 32-year-old Mohammed bin Salman (MbS) as the crown prince.

Since then, there has been an internal war of seismic proportions in the House of Saud.

Coincidently (or not) more than 12 high-level Saudi "businessmen" have met with untimely deaths. This includes (MbMbAAS) who died in a helicopter crash soon after the Vegas shooting was silenced by the FBI. (Coincidently, of course)

Ironically, no cause for the helicopter crash has been given.

****

*__Note__: To prevent confusion over the Saudi Princes complicated names, let me give you a key to remember the main players names:

MbS=Mohammed bin Salman. The 32-year-old Crown Prince.

AbT=Alaweed bin Talal. He's the one who owns the upper floors of the Mandalay Bay Hotel in Vegas.

MbMbAAS= Mansour bin Muqrin bin Abdulazzi Al Saud. He's the brother of AbT and was second in line to becoming the Crown Prince. He also recently died in the unexplained helicopter crash.

BbAbMbFaS= Bader bin Abdullah bin Mohammed bin Farhan al-Saud. (That one's a mouthful) He's an unknown prince who mysteriously came up with $450 Million to buy a da Vinci painting of Jesus.

****

Timely Purging of Saudi Corruption?

This "unfortunate" helicopter crash happened within hours after a major purge of the kingdom's political and business leadership. It was led by…wait for it! Crown Prince MbS.

Crown Prince MbS arrested over 60 of his closest friends, relatives, business executives, and high-profile Arabs and is holding them hostage at the swanky Ritz Carlton, Riyad.

“Ritz Carlton?” LOL…you can’t make this stuff up.

And one of the first ones arrested was the Wannabe Crown Prince Alaweed bin Talal (Abt). He’s the one who owns the upper floors of the Mandalay Bay Hotel.

Hmmmmm!

So now you have over 60 Saudi Princes under arrest and held captive in the Ritz and their only way out is to “Voluntarily Donate” 70% of their wealth to the Saudi Government. (Voluntarily Donate are code words meaning “Being Tortured”)

We’re talking some serious money here with estimates ranging from $800 Billion to over $1 Trillion.

Can you see the humor in this? The extortionists are being extorted by another extortionist, MbS.

This begs the question, WHY?

Why would a 32-year-old heir apparent to the crown do this?

1) He (MbS) eliminates his competition. (True)
2) He’ll add close to a Trillion dollars to his treasury. (Also, true)
3) He’s looking to the future of selling oil to Russia and China outside of the Petro-dollar. (The last two guys that tried this [Saddam Hussein and Muammar Gaddafi] were murdered…but this could also be true)
4) Revenge

5) All of the above.

All of the above are strong motives but, for now, let's go with Revenge.

"Revenge is a Dish That Tastes Best When it's served cold" -Don Corleone- The Godfather, 1969

Take a wild guess as to which Arab Princes were in Vegas on the night of the tragic shootings?

(And see if you detect any coincidence.)

Alaweed bin Talal (AbT) was at the Mandalay Bay Hotel and his cousin, Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman (MbS) was down the strip at the Tropicana.

(Be sure to put on your tin-foil hat for what you're about to read.)

The story not being told is how the Saudis (led by AbT) attempted to assassinate the crown Prince (MbS).

You read that right…it was an assassination plot that went terribly wrong.

It was an attempted Coup against the house of Saud.

Stephen Paddock was a pilot and a known gun runner for Prince Alaweed (AbT). He brought the guns in. The FBI knew he was running guns but they didn't know there was going to be an assassination attempt on Crown Prince.

Paddock was the first victim killed. He was the patsy.

The guns were used by assassins to shoot at the concertgoers to create chaos while AbT's assassins were at the Tropicana trying to kill Salman. This explains why there were shooters on the ground captured on film by numerous cell phones. (This was quickly shut down by the media)

This failed coup against the Saudi throne was a terrorist attack. It's also why everyone in Las Vegas shut up.

Are you starting to see why REVENGE is the main reason all the Saudi Princes/businessmen have since been arrested and are being held ransom for 70% of their wealth?

Connecting the Dots

A dirty trail of evidence all points back to Prince Alaweed (AbT).

If he succeeded in killing Crown Prince MbS he would then have killed King Salman as well.

With the King and his son dead who was next in line? It would have been former deputy crown prince Muqrin. (MbMbAAS)

Remember him? He was one of the "unfortunate ones" killed in the helicopter crash within hours after the purge and arrests of the other Saudi Princes.

That would have made Prince (AbT) the next king.

As they say: "It's all in a day's work," in the life of a Saudi Prince.

But the story doesn't end here.

Guess Who Recently Bought a $450 Million Painting of Jesus?

If you think this story is crazy up to this point, hold on.

Recently, the New York Times revealed the name of the mysterious buyer of the most expensive painting in history.

In November, Prince Bader bin Abdullah bin Mohammed bin Farhan al-Saud (BbAbMbFaS) ponied up a record shattering $450 million for a famous da Vinci painting called Salvator Mundi. (A painting of Jesus)

Prince BbAbMbFaS is a little-known member from a remote branch of the Saudi family with no known history of being a major art collector. Oddly enough, there's no publicly known source of his supposed great wealth.

Plus, he was not arrested, nor is he being held ransom like all the other big time Saudi princes.

Here's what's odd about this purchase. Muslims believe Jesus was a prophet. So, buying a $450 million-dollar painting of Jesus risks offending most of the Muslim world. They (especially the clerics) consider the artistic depiction of any prophet to be a form of sacrilege.

Think about this for a second. You have an unknown Saudi Prince spending almost half a billion dollars for an image of the infidel's deity-Christ.

You can't make this stuff up!

It turns out that mystery buyer (BbAbMbFaS) is close friends with 32-year-old crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman.

In other words, the unknown prince was a proxy for MbS…who two weeks prior launched his anti-corruption campaign rounding up over 200 Saudi businessmen, ministers and princes.

Oil Price Destabilization is On the Horizon

Based on what you've read up to this point it's obvious the House of Saud is running amok.

This kind of chaos means the price of oil becomes very unstable…meaning price movements will increase in volatility.

Oil stocks (suppliers, drillers, pipelines, etc.) are in for a roller coaster ride in 2018. And there are numerous ways to capitalize on it.

We're not suggesting any specific stocks to buy (Cough!! Small to mid-sized oil companies…Cough!!) but, as usual, if you want to play it safe, the oil giants are a good bet.

You should also expect the Saudis to purposely destabilize the price of oil…to the extent that it drops to below $40 per barrel and rises to over $140 per barrel.

Why?

Their wells are drying up and they’re looking for ways to steal from other oil providers.

Hmmmm! Could that be what the war in Yemen is all about? (But that’s another story for another time.)

You should also expect increased volatility when the Saudi’s stab us in the back and sell their oil (to Russia, China and other nations) outside of the dollar.

It’s inevitable.

They’ll also scramble to keep up with the demand to sell oil in Bitcoins (and other cryptocurrencies).

Even the crazy Socialist President of Venezuela has created his own cryptocurrency called the “PETRO” to hopefully solve his country’s economic problems.

Needless to say, the story doesn’t end here.

This is only the beginning of what will surely be a wild market in 2018…especially in the energy sector.

You can rest assured that in January’s newsletter we’ll follow-up on this story and show you how to profit from it.