From Russia With Love...

And Why Everyone Insists Russia is the Enemy of the World Because They Have Over $75 Trillion Worth of Natural Resources on Russian Soil

Author: Boris FoC *

Greetings and hello.

My name is Boris and Mr. James Vincent asked if Boris would contribute article for newsletter about Russia and its future with USA, Europe, China, Iran, and most of Middle East.

First, Boris left Russia many years ago before collapse of Communism and before Putin came into power.

And Boris considers America his home.

But on sad note, Boris also sees many problems facing America and how it continues to move in the direction that ended up destroying Russia.

Biggest problem Boris sees is how mass immigration destroys from inside.

Mass migration makes bad economic consequences.

Labor markets, social services, welfare systems, and community infrastructure are affected by the immigration flows.

Far-left advocates say that migration is purely humanitarian terms.

Boris says: Borscht

Because policymakers must then grapple with practical economics of assimilation, public expenditure, and labor dynamics. (Boris borrow big words from smart people to describe)

And it's no coincidence that cities with losing populations or struggling economies become cheering for more easy immigration policies.

Cities do not invite mass immigration because they are prosperous.

They do because they are desperate.

Because when city loses population, it loses tax base. Property values decline, businesses relocate, employment opportunities shrink, and municipal debt becomes harder to service.

Corrupt politicians are left with less people to rob.

So, they import bodies (illegal immigrants) to increase the welfare system to rob the federal government.

Boris knows this from growing up in Russia...and sees it coming to America.

Boris also has meme to explain.

Boris studies history and knows you cannot endlessly import people into a system already failing without making faster collapse.

Social services get strained, public trust goes away, and conflict intensifies between those contributing to the system and those stealing from it.

Is when politics turns hostile and polarized.

American Democrats opened borders and told world that they could live a taxpayer-subsidized life if they made it to America.

Sounds very inviting to millions of peoples who don't have running water or electricity.

But results show problems in America get worse.

City budgets imploded, demographics rapidly shifted.

And same politicians waving welcome flags to immigrants are now panic.

And now we witness social uprising over deportations as law and order is restored.

It's like an old Russian trick to control peoples by divide and conquer. Chaos is calculated and deliberate.

About war in Ukraine, (In Russian, "Ukraine" is pronounced Oo-krah-EE-nah) little pimp Zelenskyy will never surrender Donbas.

And Putin will never agree to any other terms.

Donbas was why Russia invaded in first place.

Minsk Agreement was to allow Donbas to vote and separate from Ukraine. But Europe and Ukraine lied and admitted they only signed Minsk agreement to buy time to build up army in Ukraine for war with Russia.

Then Europe claims Russia will take Ukraine and then take over Europe.

But opposite is true.

Russia has NEVER invaded Europe.

Europe has invaded Russia twice and lost both times.

And Boris wonders why they think third time will be charming.

EU wants war with Russia so they can keep the $350 billion they stole/seized from Russia that included personal assets of Russians not all government assets.

EU is broke.

And they do not care about international law. They make believe that seizing private assets of Russian citizens is lawful when it is outright theft.

This is oldest game in the book.

When you have a domestic crisis, find external enemy to blame.

It's like kid who tells teacher they did homework, but cat ate homework... and then an illegal migrant ate their cat.

(Boris make third world joke! LOL!)

What Neocon Europeans don't want you to know is that Ukraine sits on enormous reserves of rare earths, including lithium, titanium, graphite, and strategic metals.

These are NOT theory.

Because they were mapped out decades ago under Soviet geological surveys.

But difference today is these materials are not just commercial...they are strategic for future.

And stupid Europeans know they shoot their feet by building entire “Green” policy regime on top of supply chains they don’t control.

As result, they are now dangerously dependent on imports of critical materials, including major reliance on China for key rare earths. EU knows they cannot run industrial policy on wishful thinking.

Control of critical materials has replace control of oil as pivot of industrial strength.

Boris main point...

Whoever Controls Inputs for Next-Generation Technologies and War Machines Has Serious Advantage

And Russia is sitting on over $75 Trillion of Natural Resources...including many critical resources.

Europe need desperately to steal from Russia.

This brings reasons why now so much interest in Greenland.

Greenland sits on one of largest untapped deposits of rare earth minerals, critical materials, and uranium that is NOT controlled by China.

Strategically, it makes Greenland priceless.

But more important is who does not control it yet.

China tried.

And Russia is watching.

Trump understands that if Greenland falls into wrong hands, it will not be just territory loss.

It will be strategic chokehold on future technology and defense supply chains.

And as James Vincent always points out, European Presstitutes say that Ukraine surrendering Donbas will be suicide.

But truth is Neocon war mongers love war so much that they are willing to sacrifice the future of their families all for Donbas.

And they expect NATO/America to bail them out.

But today NATO is more like terrorist group.

NATO was created during period of high confidence in government after WWII.

And it worked because US was dominant economically, unified politically, and absorbed cost of global security.

Is no longer that way.

Because of NATO (and unlike America) Europe took money away from defense to waste on social spending, bureaucracy, and regulation...moving in Communist direction.

Because of Europe stupidity, their reliance on the US through NATO delayed reform, encouraged dependency, and allowed corrupt politicians to sell illusion that defense costs nothing.

That illusion is now end.

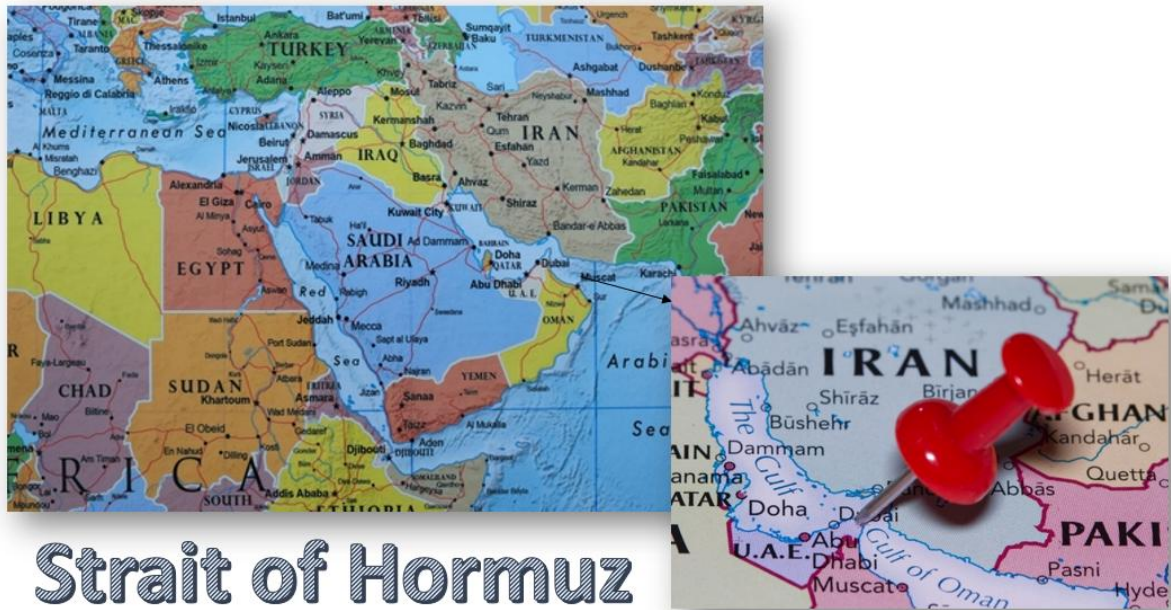

And Europe can't pay price so war must happen so they can default on all government's debt.

Adding pain to European problems, Europe put many sanctions on Russian oil attempting to reduce imports from approximately 2.5 million barrels daily to near-zero.

Other European countries (not as stupid as Germany or France) have found workarounds (purchasing Russian oil refined in India and Turkey, or transported through obscure intermediaries).

But for most part the relationship has fundamentally deteriorated.

So now Iran threatens Europe's existence saying they might shut down the Straits of Hormuz.

Strait of Hormuz

A Strait of Hormuz closure will ignite a national energy security crisis for China.

But Europe will suffer more.

The US won't suffer because we get few oils from that region.

But Europe faces entirely different story.

The European Union (EU) consumes approximately 13-14 million barrels of oil daily while producing less than 3 million barrels domestically (primarily from Norway, which is not EU member).

European oil import dependency exceeds 85%.

Critically, Europe imports approximately 2.5-3 million barrels daily directly from Persian Gulf producers, primarily Saudi Arabia, Iraq, and UAE.

This represents roughly 20-25% of total European consumption.

If Persian Gulf oil disappears from global markets, every importer competes for remaining supplies.

Europe would be bidding against China, India, Japan, South Korea, and other Asian consumers for non-Persian Gulf oil from Russia, West Africa, Latin America, and North America.

Europe's bargaining position in this competition has been severely weakened by stupid politicians...starting with mostly fat pig Angela Merkel.

Boris remembers his anger when stupid American Time magazine named Merkel "Person of the Year."

DOUBLE ISSUE

DECEMBER 21, 2015

PERSON OF THE YEAR TIME

ANGELA MERKEL
CHANCELLOR OF THE FREE

time.com

But then Boris later found out how propaganda filled Time Magazines named many evil persons of the year including Hitler and Stalin.

Boris found poof and include meme.

And not just evil persons, but stupid persons too, like Bidens, Kamalas, Gretas, and Zukerbergs.

So, Boris concludes that:

- 1) In Strait of Hormuz crisis, Europe could not rapidly re-establish Russian supply contracts.
- 2) Russia would prioritize China and India—who did not sanction Russian energy...and have built payment infrastructure in rubles and yuan.
- 3) Europe would be at back of line, forced to pay premium prices for whatever Russia was willing to sell.
- 4) If I were Putin, this would be time to crush Europe into the dirt.

As Americans like to say “Paybacks can be bitch.”

And if EU is stupid enough to listen to NATO Neocons, then Russia would be wise to cut off all exports to ensure that NATO is undermined.

Boris is not making stock recommendations. But predicts American stocks markets will continue big Bull Run while world outside America self-destructs.

Smart money always seeks safety in places like America and commodity and materials companies make big profits during wars.

And Boris hoping Trump stays out of war to save many young American lives.

Because even though Boris raised in Russia, Boris loves and calls America his home.
